Will Beger

Will Beger Cloud 9 Acrylic on canvas 60 x 30 in $3,800

Arizona native Will Beger’s whimsical paintings offer a modern take on classic Southwestern themes. Utilizing graphic design elements and methods, Will fills his colorful compositions with brightly colored cacti, fruits, vegetables, and clouds.

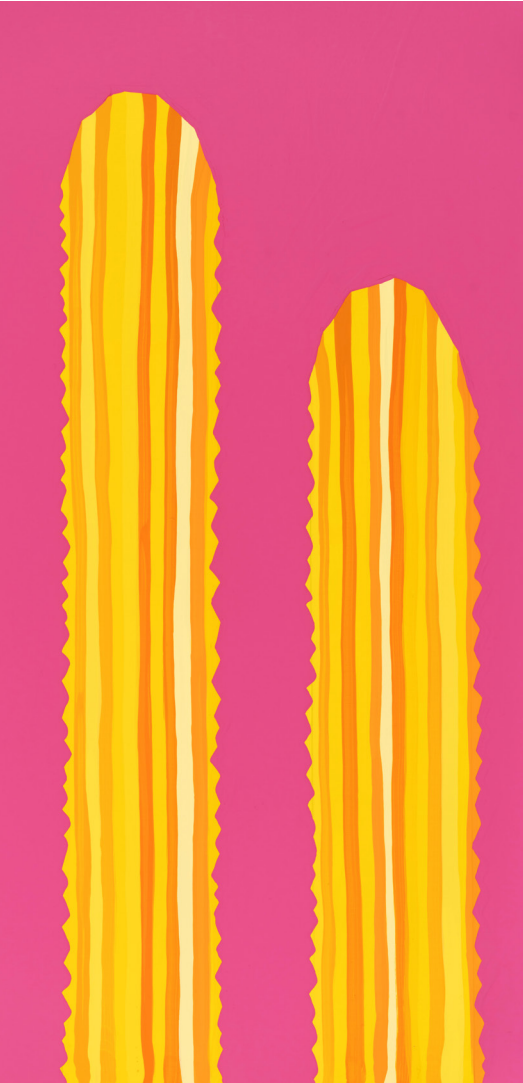

- Will has participated in numerous exhibitions and mural projects around Arizona and the greater Los Angeles area, including The Other Art Fair, Los Angeles.

CURATOR FAVORITE – WILL BEGER

"I would describe my work as bohemian, whimsical, and clean—a modern twist on the rich history of Southwestern art. Creating unexpected, unscripted, and original work gives me satisfaction, and I try not to overthink it."

Acrylic on canvas 41.2 x 41.2 in $1,850

Bernadette Twomey Hedgerow I
Acrylic on canvas 41.2 x 41.2 D in $1,850

Australian artist Bernadette Twomey paints bold floral scenes based on her extensive travels throughout Australia and around the world. Playful and bright, Bernadette's paintings are overflowing botanical arrangements full of high contrasts, delicate details, and expressive lines and colors.

- In 2022, Bernadette showed her work at The Other Art Fair, Sydney, and in 2023, she will have a solo exhibition at Grasslands Art Gallery in Val Marie, Saskatchewan.

"Immersing myself in a painting creates two things: a deeply intricate outcome on the canvas and a wonderful calming of my thoughts. As I fill the canvas with color and shapes, new species of flora and fauna emerge and interact. I paint in an almost trance-like state and stop overthinking as soon as I have a brush in my hand."

Acrylic on canvas 23.6 x 23.6 in $930

Marie-José Domenjoz Feeling Spaces
Acrylic on canvas 39.4 x 39.4 in $1,710

A former graphic designer, Paris-based artist Marie-José Domenjoz focuses on the freedom of expression through linework and brushwork. Highly abstract and gestural, Marie-José’s compositions balance frenzied and constrained lines with areas of bright color and exposed sections of the canvas.

- Marie-José has been a practicing artist for over thirty years, and her work is held in private collections throughout the US and Europe.

“My paintings are abstract, expressive, and gestural, with slight figurative references. The human body and the silhouettes of crowds inspire me. I like the freedom of the line and paint intuitively, working between chaos and order, simple and complex.”

Barbara Kuebel

Barbara Kuebel Hiding Behind
Print, woodcut on paper 56.7 x 63.8 in $3,300

Barbara Kuebel Doing Steps
Print, woodcut on paper 56.7 x 63.8 in $2,640

Austrian artist Barbara Kuebel seeks to challenge the boundaries of two-dimensional art through her life-sized paintings and woodcut prints. Human forms bend and stretch to creatively fill large canvases, resulting in abstract images that speak to Barbara's ultimate source of inspiration: the endless ways two entities can knit together and combine into one monumental shape.

- Barbara participated in The Other Art Fair, London, in 2022 and was a selected artist at the Tokyo International Art Fair in 2021.

"I use cutting tools for my woodcuts the same way I would a pencil. I see myself almost as a sculptor, as my cutting process is closest to three-dimensional art. My subject matter starts from the idea of a knot, where two parts can combine into endless possibilities."

Henry Woolway

Henry Woolway Moving in Motion
Acrylic on canvas 36 x 24 in $4,150

Henry Woolway To the Line Acrylic on canvas
36 x 48 in $9,050

Hailing from Cornwall, England, multidisciplinary artist Henry Woolway explores concepts of contrast, control, and chaos in his monochromatic paintings, wall hangings, sculptures, and works on paper. Henry's work is imbued with the aesthetics of Scandinavian and European design and culture and emphasizes the value of form over function.

- Henry is a self-taught artist based out of Liverpool. His work has been included in several auctions and gallery shows across England.

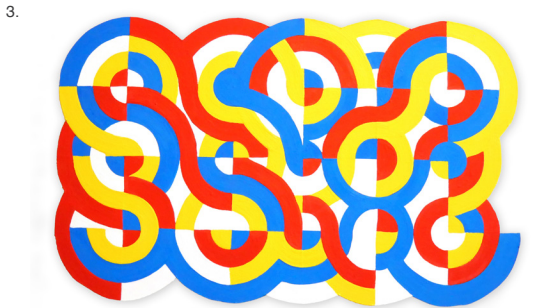

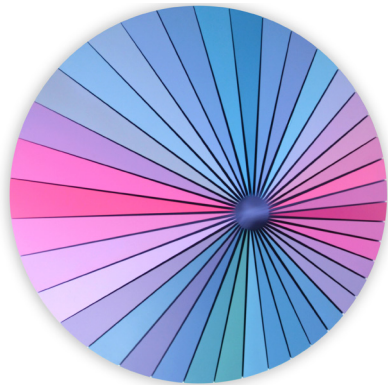

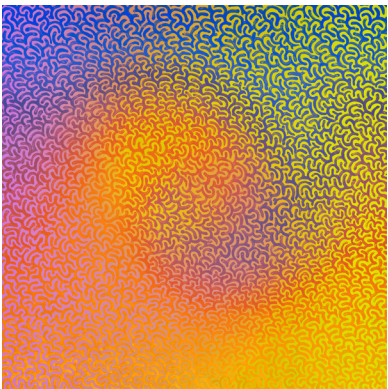

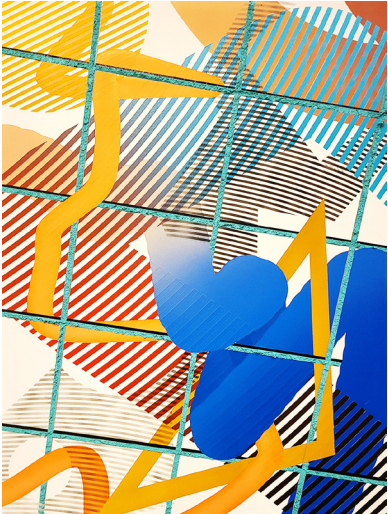

“My paintings are memories, fragmented and warped over time, brought back together, patched up, and reconsidered. My process involves creating a finished work, layering and building up the materials on the canvas, cutting or tearing parts away, and then stitching these pieces together to create something entirely new from something once whole.”

Zack Goulet

Zack Goulet The Welcoming Acrylic on canvas 48 x 48 in $1,160Zack Goulet Monolith Oil on canvas 72 x 68 in $2,450

Chicago-based artist Zack Goulet emphasizes the necessity for visual storytelling and handmade objects in our digitally saturated world through his colorful, textured, and patterned paintings. Zack draws upon his 20+ years of skateboarding, motifs from outsider and folk art, and his desire to create balance within the 2D picture plane to create unconventional, striking work.

- Zack received his BFA in painting from the College of Visual Arts in Saint Paul, Minnesota, and his work is held in several private collections, including the collection of sculptor Nick Cave.

"I'm inspired by living in the big city and its energy, but I also feel constrained by this reality and use art to liberate the feeling of being trapped within the city—kind of like my portal into another world."
